

© all photos Josh Humbert

Unless someone like you
cares a whole awful lot,
nothing is going to get better.
It's not.

- The

Lorax - Dr Seuss

WE CAN ALL POSITIVELY IMPACT OUR LAGOON ENVIRONMENTS.

Here are two ways in which we can do so:

1. Use what you have.
2. Help the fish and the fish will help you.

1. Use what you have.

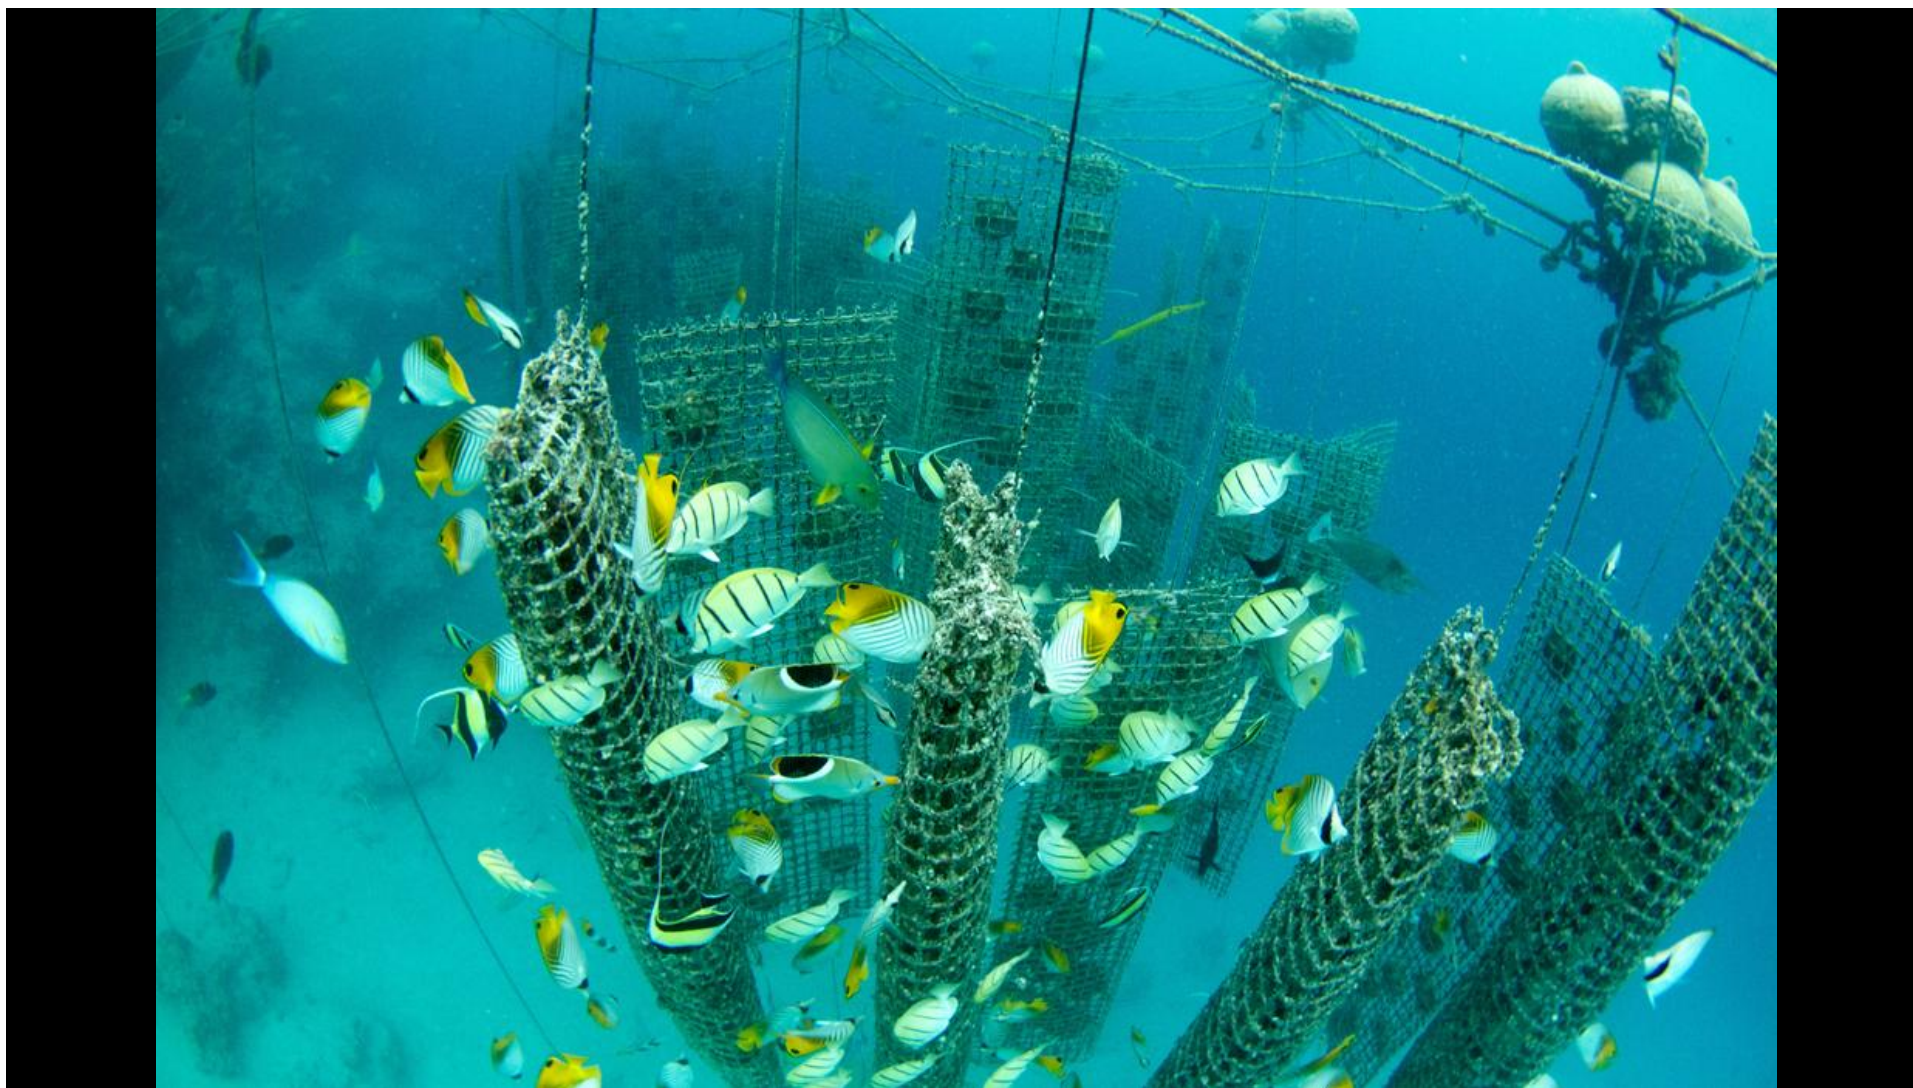

2. Help the fish and the fish will help you

 JOSH HUMBERT

JOHN HUMBERT

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC Daily News

Home Animals Ancient Energy Environment Travel/Cultures Space/Tech Water Weird News Photos News Video News Blogs

The Rise of Eco-Friendly Pearl Farming

A family business in Polynesia shows how raising pearls can benefit marine life.

Kamoka Pearl grows Tahitian pearls in French Polynesia in a way that minimizes environmental impact.

PHOTOGRAPH BY JOSH HUMBERT

Trending Now

- 01 5 Sky Events This Week: Goddess of Love and Distant Giants
- 02 Beloved African Elephant Killed for Ivory—'Monumental' Loss
- 03 Love in the Time of Padlocks: Has a Craze on the World's Bridges Gone Too Far?
- 04 The Feathered River

ADVERTISEMENT

MONTANA

#CAPTUREMONTANA

INSTAGRAM
PHOTO CONTEST

ENTER NOW ▶

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

Where did your pearl come from?

